

Maximum potential of spending is reached.

Europeans would not spend more on housing than they already do.

